“Die Fledermaus” lights up the Warner Theatre!

Since its debut over a century ago, the sparkling melodies and timeless wit and charm of Strauss’ Die Fledermaus (or, The Bat’s Revenge) continue to enchant audiences world-wide. Worcester Opera Works is delighted to be bringing this beloved classic to the historic Warner Theatre at Worcester Academy (a venue in itself worth visiting) in a fully-staged production, sung in English translation. Directed by Jacque Eileen Wilson and John Leslie, the cast includes Sepp Hammer (Dr. Falke), Richard Monroe (Eisenstein), Elaine Crane (Rosalinda), Rebecca Grimes (Adele), Ted Blaisdell (Alfredo), Ryan Burns (Frank), Lisa Woods (Prince Orlovsky), Graham Christian (Attorney Blind), Tara Goodhue (Ida) and Tom Sullivan (Frosch) as well as special musical guests.

Worcester Opera Works continues bringing local artists and local audiences together. The Worcester Telegram & Gazette raved, “This splendid production by Worcester Opera Works demonstrates the depth of the talent in the area,” and went on to say that, “Such home-grown magical music-making deserves celebration, support and, most of all, profound gratitude.” Of our last production it asserted that “Great cities are blessed with great cultural institutions. Worcester Opera Works can now be added to that group,” and called the production “...as tight and beautifully sung a presentation (as) could have been found at the Met.” Please join us and see why!
